

College of Science
Newcastle on Tyne
Sept 1st '83.

Dear Aldis

Here is a game bag for your expedition and some leather wraps for you & Mrs Aldis' cruet (or escritoir) comforts on the circumnavigation trip and in the new London Capital. The black and tan things are meant for equal division between you both, so please give the blackbirds to Mrs Aldis with my best adieux, and keep the brown beanstalks yourself; I hope you'll find them both acclimatize well in the new terrain that you are going to enjoy, I trust and profit by the virtues of.

More anon when I <sup>(you about</sup> see other Matters soon, and with kindest farewells to you both, Believe me to remain

Every affectly

Ad. Herschel

MATHEWS-62

281. Herschel (A. S.)  $1\frac{1}{2}$  page letter, 1 Sep. 1883, from £1 College of Science, Newcastle upon Tyne. Sends a gamebag & leather wraps to Mr. & Mrs. Aldis.

of your pencil drawings for book-illustration approx.  $3\frac{1}{2}$  inches square, on larger sheets. (a) In an oval, a lady, seated, plays a lute to a small girl; inscribed "The witching soul of music." (b) Girl seated holding doll, doll's cradle on right. Inscribed "The little girl to her dolly." (c) Standing barefoot girl, inscribed "Dancing Row." (d) Within a border of